

SAYS WIERNS WENT OUT.
El Paso, Tex., March 24.—According to the Mexican consul here, Andres Garcia, the Mexican wires have been cut between Cuernavaca Grandes and Madera. The same reason was given by Consul Garcia for the dearth of news following the first battle reported near Nampulque some days ago.

The contradictory reports received from Mexican sources and the absence of any definite information from Gen. Pershing have raised new doubts here as to the status of affairs in the district where Villa is supposed to be.

The fact that the American field commander made no reference in his report today of any fighting, in spite of the fact that he announced that American troops were near Namiquite, was regarded as significant.

American troops are south of Namiquite, according to a Mormon colonist from Colonia Dublin, who said one detachment of Gen. Pershing's forces had reached Madera, about forty miles southwest of Namiquite. Gen. Bell said that this information probably was correct, but that he had no official news of it. According to the colonist, Gen. Pershing has been using the Northwestern road south of Casas Grandes since Sunday.

HERRERA STATUS IN DOUBT.
The status of Gen. Luis Herrera was considered here as doubtful today, as it has been since the first report reached here of his revolt.

In spite of reports from American consuls and embassy statements from Carranza generals and officials, the belief that Herrera has either turned against the de facto government or is on the point of doing so is firmly held here.

Americans arriving here from the interior today gave fresh color to this belief by circumstantial stories of Herrera's defection and asserted that he was between Chihuahua and Parral, marching toward Torreon with at least 3,000 troops.

TELLS OF AIR SCOUTING.
Columbus, N. M., March 24.—Air scouts are proving invaluable to the American expeditionary force in Mexico, according to Lieut. T. S. Bowen, who reached here tonight. The first army aviator to return to the border.

He has been invaluable to San Antonio as the result of a fall sustained last Monday while landing near Casas Grandes.

Lieut. Bowen asserted that the high altitude and lack of gasoline and oil in the district occupied by the American troops are proving a serious handicap in the operation of the airplanes. He pointed out that since joining the column the airplanes generally have been about sixty-five miles ahead of the cavalry.

Tells of Willis' Mishap.
Lieut. Bowen brought with him the details of the delay to Lieut. Robert H. Willis, for whom search was made for several days.

"Lieut. Willis misjudged his route and flew about thirty-six miles beyond Casas Grandes, his destination," he said. "He landed in the dark, and in landing struck a bluff in such a way that part of his landing gear was torn away, leaving his plane helpless. He realized he was in the country held by the enemy, so started a long march back to the advanced base."

"He walked at night and hid in arroyos during the day. Only once was he molested and this was when he was made his way to a burning railroad tie and attempted to read his maps. Three armed Mexicans crept from a ravine and cornered him to half. Instead he jumped into some brush and escaped."

Two Lose Their Scotes.
Lieut. Bowen said that after the start here last Sunday the army flyers flew easily to La Amacion, where they landed and spent the night. After the start the next day the two aviators, Lieut. Willis and Edgar A. Gornell, who were later reported missing, became separated, failing to reach Casas Grandes with the others.

He asserted that there are numerous landmarks in the northern part of Chihuahua by which the aviators may find their way. The thin, puffy air of the high altitude of the country makes flying somewhat difficult over the district, and makes it impossible at a greater height than 5,000 feet, he said.

TEXAS SHERIFF ASKS GOVERNOR TO SEND TROOPS

Fears Mexican Uprising Despite Optimism of Federal Authorities.

El Paso, Tex., March 24.—Evidence of the seriousness with which the local authorities regard the border situation was supplied tonight in an announcement by Sheriff Peyton James Edwards that he had telegraphed Gov. James E. Ferguson that he believed the state militia should be sent to the frontier.

Sheriff Edwards said he did not wish to be considered an alarmist, but that developments in Mexico convinced him that additional protection was needed for Americans along the border. He refused to give the wording of his telegram or say how many additional troops he thought necessary.

Differ on Impending Danger.
The action of Sheriff Edwards, following that of the Arizona authorities in directing that the border companies of militia of that state be recruited to full war strength, gave renewed force to the tension which early in the day showed signs of relaxing.

There is a sharp difference in the point of view between federal and local officials here. The former insist that while the situation is filled with dangerous possibilities there is no reason to fear any immediate crisis.

The local authorities, on the other hand, are equally positive that there is grave danger of an outbreak which will set the entire border in a blaze.

Fear Mexican Uprising.
The federal officials are showing increasing irritation over the alarming reports about conditions which are being circulated here night and day, and which are being sent out to the rest of the country in news dispatches. They are fearful of the effect that these reports will have on the Mexicans, who have shown many signs in the last few days of increasing restlessness.

Consul Thomas D. Edwards at Juarez and several other Americans resident in the Mexican town sent a telegram to the state department today vigorously protesting against the circulation of these reports and asking that some steps be taken to stop them.

It is understood that similar messages have been sent to Washington from other federal officers with a direct recommendation that a censorship be established here.

More Soldiers Disabled.
Seven privates, suffering from various ailments, reached here today from the front and were taken to Fort Bliss hospital. The most seriously ill was Private Robertson of the Sixth Infantry, who was stricken with paralysis on the march.

All told stories of the privates suffered by the American troops in their dash across the Chihuahua desert. They complained especially of the raging thirst from which the soldiers suffered constantly and also of the stress caused by the chilly nights which followed burning days.

One hundred members of the expeditionary force are now at the base hospital. Thirty-five are said to be seriously ill.

Melchor Herrera, brother of Gen. Luis Herrera, was released today by the United States authorities. He was arrested when reports became current here that Gen. Herrera had revolted from the de facto government. The arrest was made just after a conference that Herrera had held with Gen. Goziva, commander of the Juarez garrison.

Herrera went immediately to Juarez after his release.

No Request for Troops.
Austin, Tex., March 24.—Gov. James T. Ferguson said tonight he had no request for mobilization of the Texas national guard from Sheriff Edwards of El Paso county. Adj. Gen. Henry Hutchings said no such request had been received by his department, and that no such action was contemplated tonight. No militia has been called out yet anywhere in this state.

Douglas Fears a Mixup.
Douglas, Ariz., March 24.—Reports circulated here last night to the effect that

Pershing's Pursuit of Villa Outlaws.

A—Culberson ranch, from which Col. Dodd's flying force started its expedition, and route southward.
B—Columbus, starting point of main expedition. Route lying southward to near Mexican Northwest, thence following roughly the line of that railway.
C—Casas Grandes, from which point the American forces were scattered in real hunt for Villa.
D—Villa, fifty-five miles from Casas Grandes, selected by Pershing as temporary base of operations.
E—Las Cruces, which lies south of Casas Grandes to Villa, and which may become important strategic point.
F—El Ojo, where Villa is reported to be surrounded by American and Carranza forces and where first battle may already have occurred. El Ojo lies five miles from Namiquite, where Villa was reported to have been seen last.

large numbers of Mexican troops were being concentrated within striking distance of Douglas proved to be groundless today. Steps were taken, however, by residents to request that patrols of United States troops be placed on guard throughout the city each night to guard against any possible uprising.

A movement was instituted today by business men and citizens which is expected to result in appeals to Gen. Thomas F. Davis, in command here, that soldiers be placed on duty at night in the residence districts.

Many Mexicans in City.
At least 60 per cent of the population of Douglas is Mexican, and, according to reports circulated about the streets, many of them are sympathizers of the Villa movement.

Many reports have been received by the civil authorities of scores of ammunition and rifles hidden in various quarters of the city, but thus far these caches have not been located. If they really exist, what time Pershing may find himself with hostile forces all around him and between him and the border. At the present time the railways are in entire possession of the Mexicans.

Pershing Must Cross Desert.
In other words, they can move their troops and supplies by rail where Pershing's have to march across a red hot country almost a desert. Herrera at Chihuahua is nearer to Pershing than Pershing is to the American border. Herrera can move by rail. Pershing, due to the failure of the administration to meet the issue squarely, cannot because his orders do not permit him to do so.

For the same reason everything going to Pershing at the present time has to go overland. Motor trucks full of supplies are laboring along through the sand, infantry soldiers with their feet blistered are doing the same, while the horses and mules suffer from the heat and lack of water and in some cases die. All this a few miles away from a railway which nothing but their orders prevent their using.

If Pershing is to operate in Mexico with a reasonable chance of not being cut off from the United States the railway from Juarez through Casas Grandes must be absolutely in the possession of our troops. If getting possession of it means the capture of Juarez and the driving out of the Mexican troops occupying it the issue must be squarely faced.

PERSHING NEEDS RAILROAD LINES TO GET SUPPLIES

Must Seize Route if Carranza Does Not Turn It Over to U. S. Control.

"A free people ought not only to be armed but disciplined, to which end a uniform and well digested plan is requisite."
—GEORGE WASHINGTON.

BY CAPT. HENRY J. REILLY.
Washington, D. C., March 24.—(Special.)—The time has arrived when the question of properly supplying Gen. Pershing's command with food, ammunition, and reinforcements must be solved.

The indications are that the protocol to be signed with Carranza will not settle the question satisfactorily. Already the problem is changing from one of catching Villa to one in which it is necessary to insure Pershing everything that could be needed in the event of hostile attack.

This can only be done by establishing and maintaining a proper line of communication so well guarded as to prevent its being successfully attacked, with the consequent cutting off of Pershing from his base across the American border.

Midst of Hostile People.
Pershing's command is in the midst of a hostile country. Villa's troops are hostile. The natives everywhere are hostile. Throughout the states of Chihuahua and Sonora, in one of which we are already operating and in the other of which we may have to operate at any time, there are garrisons of Carranzista troops. For the time being they are supposed to be friendly, but as a matter of fact they are hostile. Most of them have served in the past under Villa.

Their unreliability has been recently illustrated by the attempt of the Oljaga garrison to revolt. Col. Canzo's conference with Villa officers instead of a combat at Namiquite, as was reported by the Carranzista government; Herrera's revolt at Chihuahua, since denied but probably correct, and Villa's appearance at Montemorelos, half way between Juarez and Chihuahua on the railway connecting these two towns, at a time when Carranza's officials are reporting him to be surrounded more than a hundred miles to the southwest.

As a consequence there is no telling at what time Pershing may find himself with hostile forces all around him and between him and the border. At the present time the railways are in entire possession of the Mexicans.

Pershing Must Cross Desert.
In other words, they can move their troops and supplies by rail where Pershing's have to march across a red hot country almost a desert. ## PRESIDENT WILSON HOP TO AVOID OF MORE

Decides Not to Call on Use as Patrols Along Border of Mexico

BY ARTHUR SEARS
Washington, D. C., (Special.)—While the sentimentous debate over the advisability of the President's expedition in Mexico continues, his cabinet members should be no change in this. The principal of the day were:

PRESIDENT SEEKS TO AVOID CHANGE IN POLICY REGARDING MEXICO

WILSON HOPES TO AVOID USE OF MORE MEN

Wishes Not to Call Militia for Use as Patrols Along the Border of Mexico.

ARTHUR SEARS HENNING. Washington, D. C., March 24.—(Special.)—While the senate indulged in a heated debate over the question of sending the Pershing punitive expedition to Mexico President Wilson and his cabinet decided that there should be no change of policy at this time. The principal developments of the day were:

The president and the cabinet decided not to call out any militia units at this time or take any other steps which, in their opinion, might be interpreted by Carranza as a move in the direction of a general armed intervention in Mexico.

The administration pronounced its support of Gen. Herrera's defense of Carranza unfounded and the work of interventionist agitators in Mexico and the United States. Cabinet members expressed indignation that Gen. Bell had continued the story of the Herrera revolt and rebuked him not only for giving authority to the report but for sending it to be telegraphed to the press.

The administration decided to tighten the censorship of news reports on the border so as to suppress reports of Mexican advances and of other conditions tending to the success of the Carranza expedition.

The administration officials expressed the belief that Gen. Pershing's forces have established contact with Villa and that a resumption of the action would be forthcoming within twenty-four hours.

Senators Sherman, Borah and Townsend, Republican, and Ashurst, Democrat, in support of the reinforcement of the punitive expedition and the border, criticized an angry rebuke by Senator Stone, the administration spokesman on foreign affairs, who asserted that a call for reinforcements would inspire Mexicans with fear of American intervention.

Senator Lewis introduced a resolution declaring that Americans withdrawing Villa with arms and ammunition and proposing that such Americans be branded traitors of actual treason.

REPORTS OF CONSULS. When the cabinet met with the president Secretary of State Lansing submitted a summary of dispatches from American consuls in Mexico reporting on local conditions.

Among them was a long telegram from United States Consul Letcher at Olancho stating that "there is not a word of truth" in the report that Carranza with his 2,000 soldiers had entered Carranza and gone over to Villista. He said Carranza will hold Carranza.

A few of the other consular dispatches reported "conditions of unrest." The consul at Durango said Americans are being killed locally, but that there has been no anti-American outbreak.

WILSON ANGRY AT PRESS. Secretary Lansing blamed the newspapers for publishing Gen. Bell's condemnation of the report of the Herrera revolt, saying that if the newspapers are to report events emanating from individuals on the border, including officials, they will be filled with lies.

The Lansing said the censorship should be tightened up so as to prevent such reports from obtaining publicity, and with this suggestion the president and the cabinet agreed.

The Lansing reported that Gen. Carranza seems to be cooperating in good faith with the Washington government in carrying out the punitive expedition.

20,000 MEN ON BORDER. Secretary of War Baker advised the president that there are about 20,000 troops on the border which can be used to reinforce Pershing if necessary, and about 5,000 troops in the remainder of the country. It must be that this number should be required for reinforcements there would be only the 14,000 troops in the coast fortifications upon which to draw.

Mr. Wilson made it clear that in his view the militia regiments should not be called out to be placed in a state of preparedness, despite the disclosure that it will take more than six months to recruit the additional 20,000 men for the regular army.

The president communicated to Senator Stone his decision not to call out the national guard at this time, and in pursuance of this course the senator sought to clamp the lid down tight on discussion of the Mexican situation in the senate.

Lewis Charge of Treachery. It was shortly after the senate convened that Senator Lewis presented his resolution in regard to the shipment of American arms to Villa. He said he would speak on the resolution tomorrow and would substantiate his charge with official reports if the administration permits.

The Lewis resolution says it is known that funds and supplies are being furnished to the followers of Villa "for the purpose of being used against the soldiers of the United States." It continues:

"Those who are furnishing such supplies to the forces of Villa are the enemies of the United States and those in the United States who are furnishing supplies to the Villa forces, either of money, provisions, arms and ammunition, are within the provision of the laws of the United States defining treason as giving aid and comfort to the enemies of the United States."

Plea Made on Border. Senators Borah, Sheppard, Thomas, and Ashurst presented telegrams from the border stating that Americans face great danger from Carranzista troops. A typical telegram was the following to Senator Ashurst from D. A. Richardson at Douglas, Ariz.:

"Mexican general has forty pieces of

We have only 1,800 infantry, 300 cavalry, and four pieces of artillery. Our troops are stationed two miles east of Douglas and I am reliably informed that it would take one hour for our troops to reach Douglas in case of a night attack.

"Our army is forbidden from making any active defense preparations for fear the Mexicans might misconstrue such preparation. The Mexican troops could easily repeat the Columbus massacre at Douglas on a much larger scale."

Rebuke Given by Stone. Thereupon Senator Stone arose and addressed the senate. "Mr. President," he said, "it would have been better if all these communications had been delivered to the war department instead of being read in the open senate."

"The president has given it out by proclamation, and by diplomatic communications that the expeditionary force was sent in pursuit of the bandit who attacked Columbus, N. M., was not in accordance with the sovereignty of Mexico in a spirit of unfriendly hostility."

"There are influences at work and we know it—in this country, as well as Mexico, to arouse a public opinion and to create a condition in Mexico that would embarrass this government in carrying out the purposes it has in view and precipitate a situation the end of which we know not of."

WAR FIGHT MAY BE FATAL. Boy in Serious Condition After Being Hit on Head by Stock-Yards Man.

A quarrel about the war in Europe may have a fatal sequel. It is said at the Mary hospital that Edward Brimley, 15 years old, of 4400 South Wood street, probably will die. He was struck on the head with an iron bar held by John Puskas of 4645 South Winchester avenue. Both are stockyards employees. The Brimley boy is a Russian and Puskas is Polish.

NAVY SECRETARY SHOULD LEAVE STRATEGY ALONE

Rear Admiral Fiske, Former Daniels Aid, Advises Necessary Legislation.

BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT. Washington, D. C., March 24.—(Special.)—Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, former personal aide to Secretary of the Navy Daniels, today advised the house naval affairs committee to enact legislation preventing civilian secretaries of the navy from having anything to do with the strategy of the navy.

In view of the extreme feeling which is known to exist between Secretary Daniels and his former aide, the statement created a sensation.

Daniels Protests Testimony. Admiral Fiske gave this advice in reply to a question asked by Representative Britten of Chicago, who was responsible for having him summoned before the committee over the objection of Secretary Daniels.

Admiral Fiske recommended that the strategy of the navy be left to a board of experts.

"As long as we have every four years a secretary of the navy who may, and generally does, change the strategy of the navy we will fall short of our duty," he told the committee.

Cites Japan and Germany. "The most efficient navies in the world are those of Japan and Germany," he continued, "and in both countries it is required that the secretary of the navy be a naval officer. I am not going that far. It is not the policy of this country to put the military above the civil. But in matters of strategy the experts on strategy should rule."

Somewhat reluctantly Admiral Fiske also said that Secretary Daniels had told him that he did not want him "talking to members of congress and giving interviews to newspaper men" on the question of preparedness.

Archbishop Directs Clergy to Take Collections for Relief of Starving Old Men, Women, and Children.

The first appeal to the Catholics of Chicago for funds made by Archbishop Mundelein since coming to this diocese was issued yesterday. It was an appeal in behalf of the suffering thousands of stricken Poland.

The archbishop directs the clergy to read the appeal at the masses in the churches tomorrow and to receive the following Sunday, April 2. The appeal is in accordance with those made by Pope Benedict XV. and the bishops of Poland.

"The climax of Poland's suffering has come," the appeal says. "Every able bodied man and boy has been impressed into the three contending armies. But what is more pitiful, the alien, innocent sufferers are the aged and the weak, the women and the children; with their breadwinners torn from their midst, in most cases never to return, with their homes razed to the ground, they are reduced to misery and starvation which is appalling."

There is hardly a blade of grass or a globe in the land which has not been crushed by a soldier's foot. More than 10,000 small towns and villages have been destroyed, nearly all children under 7 years of age are dead, and half a million old men, women, and children are facing starvation."

DIAZ AND ZAPATA JOIN FORCES?

Plan to March on Mexico City Unless Intercepted, Vera Cruz Report.

10,000 MEN IN ARMIES.

Galveston, Tex., March 24.—(Special.)—Advice reaching here from Vera Cruz declares that the armies of Felix Diaz and Zapata, which have been operating in southern Mexico for months, have united in the state of Morelos approximately 100 miles south of Mexico City.

From these reports it appears the Federalists after capturing the important city of Puebla and making arrangements to hold it, marched west through the mountain passes and joined Zapata.

It was said that a deserter from Diaz's army brought the news to Vera Cruz and declared that the united armies would march direct to the capital of Mexico if some strong Carranzista force did not intercept them. It is reported the combined forces number 10,000.

The dispatches declare that the fighting about Puebla has been fierce and that many men on both sides were lost. Diaz appeared to have a greater number of cannon and eventually succeeded in driving opposition from the little state. Carranza has a strong force between Cuernavaca and Mexico City.

CHINA RACING TO PERDITION: YUAN WOULD AVERT IT. President's Mandate Formally Renouncing Title of Emperor Made Public with an Explanation.

Washington, D. C., March 24.—President Yuan Shi Kai's mandate renouncing his acceptance of the title of emperor of China, and declaring China's return to republican government was made public in part tonight by the Chinese legation.

In it Yuan says he consented to proposals for a monarchy after "irresistible" insistence by a coalition of popular representatives, but feeling that acceptance of the throne would violate his oath as president he never took any steps to put the monarchical program actually into effect.

For his failure to oppose the monarchical movement more vigorously, however, he takes upon himself the blame for "all the faults of the country," and calls upon all Chinese to unite in saving a nation which through internal dissension "is racing to perdition."

UNCLE JOE USES CENSUS OF 1790 TO HELP ALIENS

Cannon Points Out Few Members of House Had Ancestors
Here at That Time.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)

Washington, D.C., March 24.—(Special.) "Uncle Joe" Cannon brought the house to its feet with cheers today when he made a speech on the Burnett immigration bill denouncing members who expressed a desire to preserve America for Americans. He pointed out that more than two-thirds of the congressmen were descended from persons who were not in the United States when the first census was taken in 1790.

The former speaker was the first to attack the measure, which was called up for passage today in order to check the flow of immigration after the war. The Burnett bill contains a literacy test and various other provisions intended to cut down the number of immigrants.

List of First Families.

"Uncle Joe," when he got up, referred to the remark made by Mr. Burnett, "America for Americans."

"Who are the native Americans?" he asked. "I have for years tried to find the native element in our population. I recently turned to a report of the census office under the title of 'A Century of Population Growth,' in which is given a list of the family names which appeared in the first census in 1790. This gives all the family names that represented 100 or more people on the assumption that the 'heads of families in 1790 were the founders of the republic' and that these names, numbering 27,337, would be the basis for our American genealogy."

"How many of us can trace our lineage back to those first American families? And how many of us are compelled to trace our lineage back to the alien immigrant? I tried to trace the membership of this house back to that American 'Almanach de Gotha' and I could not locate one-third of you."

Mr. Cannon continued by saying the congress of the United States is not the only place where actions of the first families do not monopolize the membership.

"I can find in that list of first families in 1790," he said, "no Agassiz, Edison or Westinghouse; no Carnegie, Harriman, Havemeyer, or Mackay; no Belmont, Lothrop, or Lister; no Funtun or Pershing; no Watterson or Pulitzer; no Gompers or Morrison; no Billy Sunday or Mary Pickford."

"There is one other name absent from this old list of first families with which we have all become familiar in recent years. For it has appeared in the public prints more, perhaps, than any other, so associated with stirring events in both military and civil life—at the head of a regiment of rough riders, as governor of New York, as vice president and president of the United States, as lion hunter, explorer, naturalist, discoverer of the River of Doubt, an idol of many people who call themselves the true Americans of this composite people. The name of Roosevelt does not appear in any form, synonym, or root in the list of first families."

Commissioners Report on Institutions Seeking Recognition for 1916.

Thirty normal schools and colleges and universities were added to the 1916 accredited list of educational institutions of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools at the annual meeting of the commissioners in the Hotel La Salle yesterday.

The report of accredited normal schools for 1916 showed 1,139 schools were reported by the inspectors, of which 927 were unqualifiedly recommended, eighty-nine were warned, thirteen were to be dropped and 106 to be further inspected.

The new schools accredited Illinois are Armour Institute of Technology, Carnegie College, Illinois Wesleyan University, and Wheaton College.

STRUCK GALLANT POSTMAN; GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER.

Woman for Whom Mail Collector Died Hysterical When Verdict She Fought Is Read.

Charles Robert Petzel, a mail collector, paid for an act of chivalry with his life on Nov. 27 last. He came upon George Natske and Miss Mabel Carr quarreling as they emerged from a saloon late one Saturday night. It was said Natske had struck the woman when Petzel intervened. The mailman was knocked down by Natske. He died the next day, leaving a widow and baby.

Yesterday the widow sat in Judge Brothers' court and heard a jury return a verdict finding Natske guilty of manslaughter. The mailman was knocked down by Natske. He died the next day, leaving a widow and baby.

G. O. P. FACTIONS IN TWENTY-FIRST GET TOGETHER

Harmony Meeting Decides to Back Walker, Hebel, and McCormick.

North side aldermanic politics took a sudden and surprising turn last night when all old time fighting elements in the Twenty-first ward—apart from the Smiths—since the days of the Buess administration—got together on a general harmony proposition.

At North Side Turner hall were nearly all the precinct committeemen representing the two recent Republican factions and the 1912 Progressive element.

All to Back Walker.

The definite agreement was reached to stand for Earl J. Walker, the Republican nominee for alderman, for Oscar Hebel as the candidate for Republican ward committeeman, and for Medill McCormick as the candidate for Republican state committeeman.

Accepted as the general plan of campaign was a composite of all available forces tending toward the defeat of Dorsey Crowe, nominated as the Democratic candidate for alderman by the John F. O'Malley faction.

500 at the Meeting.

Five hundred active Republicans were at the meeting. In composition it is held by north side politicians to be more significant of Republican harmony than could be said of Republican sessions held south of North avenue since the harmony days of 1907.

Direct accusations were made by Mr. Hebel in addressing the meeting that election day frauds of the gone and forgotten type are in preparation for election day, and that the Twenty-first ward "stands" the territory between Illinois street and the Chicago river—once again becomes of conspicuous political prominence.

The meeting foregathered the silk stockings and the cotton socks. The Lake Shore drive seemed to be represented as ably and as numerous as were the precincts that center on Clark street. Medill McCormick talked straight from the shoulder for Republican party harmony.

Charge Forgery on Petitions.

The board of election commissioners was in a turmoil last night over an attempt to have thrown out the independent petition of Ald. Charles F. Petticoke in the Eleventh ward. Petticoke was defeated for the Democratic nomination. He filed an independent petition. The last day for filing petitions was March 22.

The case was reopened upon some pretext by Commissioner Lueders.

When he began receiving the testimony of twenty-nine waiting witnesses who asserted their names were forged to the Petticoke petition, Commissioner Lueders said he had been misled. The affair was turned over to the legal department of the board for further inquiry and will be settled today.

Hunt G. O. P. Chairman.

The Cook county Republican organization fight to be settled at the presidential primaries, April 11, yesterday settled down into a three-cornered showdown as to the man to be named as county chairman after the ballot battle.

Tact announcement that Homer K. Galpin will be the candidate of the neutrals for the chairman's job, was followed by information that the present vice chairman, John C. Cannon, likely will be the candidate of the Deane element. The city hall faction is said to be for August W. Miller.

Passed $3,500,000 urgent deficiency appropriation bill.

Returned debate on Indian appropriation bill.

Adjourned at 5:35 p. m. to noon Saturday.

HOUSE.

Met at 11 a. m. Immigration bill was brought up for general debate.

Speaker Clark appointed committee to investigate and report on expunging from Congressional Record a speech inserted by Representative Davis of Texas under leave to print privilege.

Recessed 6 p. m. until 11 a. m. Saturday.

MAYOR THOMPSON TELLS OTTAWA VOTERS ABOUT IT.

"Give Republicans in the Banks an Opportunity to Choose Their Party Leader," His Policy.

Ottawa, Ill., March 24.—(Special.) Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago was greeted this evening at the company "C" armory by an audience in excess of 1,000 persons, who gave him a hearty welcome.

Mayor Thompson strongly endorsed Senator Lawrence T. Sherman as the Republican nominee for president. He urged harmony among Republicans, "and if the people rule," he said, "we will have harmony. Give the Republicans in the ranks an opportunity to choose their party leader. The people resent dictation."

The speaker then outlined the course he had pursued in having himself placed in the primary ballot as a candidate at large to the Republican convention. He said his purpose was to lay the matter squarely before the Republican voters of Illinois, because it has been his observation that the man who trusts his fellow men will in turn be trusted by them.

POLITICAL NOTES BY WIRE.

NEW YORK.—Charles A. Tamm, former United States senator from Minnesota, announced he would enter the primaries in New York for the Democratic nomination to succeed Senator James A. O'Gorman.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—James Watson spent $4,000 in seeking the Republican nomination for United States senator from Indiana. The complete statement of his primary campaign expenses filed with the senate stated he received no contributions.

GERMANS MAKE SLIGHT ADVANCE IN VERDUN FIELD

French Trenches Near Village of Haucourt Are Captured by the Enemy.

LONDON, March 24.—Following a slight success by the Germans to the west of Haucourt, the attack on Verdun has moved to artillery actions. The official statement issued by the German army headquarters today said:

The violence of the artillery duels increased considerably at times in the Champagne, on the Somme-Py-Southern high road, and in the Argonne, and in the Meuse district as far as the front.

Following up our successes of Wednesday, we occupied another trench west of Haucourt. On this occasion the number of prisoners increased to thirty-two officers and 519 men.

French Official Statement. The official statement issued by the ministry of war in Paris said:

"In the Argonne the enemy succeeded in capturing a footing in the first line trenches. We repelled him through counter attacks. The activity of our artillery continues intense against the German lines of communication in the eastern Argonne and also on the woods of Haucourt and Avocourt. In the region to the north of Verdun there was intermittent bombardment of our second lines to the west and east of the Meuse, to which our batteries replied energetically."

TELLS OF GERMAN LOSSES. PARIS, March 24.—The Germans could have believed that their losses in Verdun were not greater than those of the French army, says a semi-official note issued this afternoon. "The following example will show how great the German sacrifices were."

"On the forenoon of March 9 the first battalion of the Nineteenth regiment of the Fifth German corps attacked the village of Vaux in columns of four. The French allowed the first company to penetrate the village, where it was surprised by a violent machine gun fire and then charged with bayonets. This company was annihilated."

"The next day the Sixty-fourth regiment of infantry of the Sixth division of the Third German corps replaced, to the north of Vaux, the decimated Nineteenth regiment, but the Sixty-fourth sustained such loss by the fire of artillery that this unit was countermanded."

Tend to Remake Regiments. "In the battle of Verdun, which has continued a month, has been made up of daily fighting. The German sacrifices are all of all proportion to their success. It is known that the Third and Nineteenth army corps had to be sent to the front March 2 to be reconstituted. The Third corps had to have two-thirds of its officers replaced and its gaps filled up with recruits of the class of 1916, who were in proportion of two-fifths in each company."

"During their last attacks the Third army companies only counted about 120 men instead of 300."

LOAN A BRILLIANT SUCCESS.

BERLIN, March 24, by wireless to Sayville, N. Y.—Dr. Karl Helfferich, secretary of the imperial treasury, told the following today that the fourth German loan had been a brilliant success, the subscriptions having reached more than $1,000,000,000.

There's a lot of men, who can afford to pay more, that think Five Dollars is the right price to pay for shoes—they're discriminative and far above the average in determining values.

We have a big Five Dollar trade—one of the largest in the city—and they tell us our Five Dollar models look like Six and even Seven elsewhere.

This spring you'll find many exceptionally clever Five Dollar models here.

Main Battle Front in Russia.

1—The Russians are trying by heavy attacks to cut the railway between Mitau and Jacobstadt and break the communications of the Germans along this section of the Drina river front.

2—Berlin reports a blow attack against the bridgehead position near Jacobstadt.

3—Near Widsy the Russians are endeavoring to pierce the German positions and to cut the Vilna-Drinsk railway.

4—The Russians also are continuing heavy attacks in the lake region in an endeavor to force a retirement of the Germans in this sector.

5—The main purpose of the Russian attacks all along the northern front apparently is to force the Germans to retire from the area between Riga and Smolensk. If the Germans can be forced back to nearly a straight line between these two points the Russian staff believes another Russian offensive against Riga and Drinsk would be forestalled.

GERMAN SOCIALIST PARTY SPLIT OVER WAR POLICY.

Eighteen Members of Reichstag Bolt and Form New Wing—Bar Leaders from Roll.

BERLIN, March 24, by wireless to Tuckerton, N. J.—The long expected split in the German Socialist party as the result of the political situation created by the submarine warfare controversy in the reichstag occurred today. A new party consisting of eighteen Socialist members was constituted by the radical wing after a Socialist caucus had decided to exclude Deputy Haase for a breach of discipline.

The Socialist caucus was held after closure had been applied in the reichstag by the president. When the resolution was reached to exclude Deputy Haase, for the same reason that Deputy Liebknecht was excluded from the organization, the minority assembled and resolved to leave the party.

The total number of Socialist members in the reichstag is 100. The dissenting minority on the last vote consisted of thirty Socialists.

RUSSIANS FAIL IN ALL ATTACKS, BERLIN REPORTS

Slavs Keep Up Fierce Assault on German Lines—Shell Fire Is Terrific.

BERLIN, March 24.—The German war office today issued the following official statement:

While during the day the Russians collected their forces only for a strong advance against the bridgehead at Jacobstadt, east of Buschhof, they undertook during the night repeated attacks north of Mitau-Jacobstadt railway and an attempt to take us by surprise south of Dvinsk, and exhausted themselves in uninterrupted fierce storm attacks against our front north of Widsy. All their attacks broke down, with heavy losses in men under our fire or before our entanglements in cases where they advanced as far as that. Further south there were no fresh attacks.

Slav Shell Fire Intense.

The latest dispatches from the northern sector of the Russian line say the Russian drum fire became intense on the evening of March 19. More than 50,000 shells, chiefly of heavy caliber, fell over a small section of the front near Postavy. German wire entanglements and the front line trenches were damaged.

At night the Russians attacked in thick waves. The first two waves were moved down before they reached the entanglements. The third attack pierced the German position on a front of less than 100 yards, and the assault was decided by a counter attack led in person by a regimental commander. At dawn the Russians made a fourth attack, but it was smothered in the initial stages by German artillery.

Four Russian divisions are said to have participated in these movements. The Germans were compelled to summon almost no reserves. Their losses were heavier than on the two preceding days, but nevertheless were surprisingly small.

Russian Official Statement.

PETROGRAD, March 24.—The following official communication was issued today:

Our raiding parties which had passed the Drina captured an enemy machine gun in the Friedrichstadt district. In the Jacobstadt section important forces of Germans made counter attacks near Augustinof, which we repulsed. Northwest of Lake Vargunok our offensive is developing. Our detachments are advancing in the vicinity of the town of Widsy and in the Mischkele section northward of Lake Sekly. Notwithstanding the heavy heavy enemy fire, our troops, with a strong forward drive, forced all the adversary's lines and barricades in the section of Clipa and repulsed a German counter attack.

Take Strong German Positions. Our artillery is keeping under its fire many parts of the enemy's position, thus preventing the repairing of damage. Between Lakes Narotche and Vichnevaloke the fighting continues. Our troops have dislodged the enemy from the woods in the vicinity of Bilank and Mokritsa, although they were strongly defended and thickly surrounded by wire entanglements.

In the course of the fighting from March 18 to 21, we took the following prisoners: In the region northwest of Postavy, two officers and 160 soldiers, and in the region of Lake Narotche, eighteen officers and 1,235 soldiers. We captured eighteen machine guns, twenty-six field mortars, ten trench mortars, two mine throwers, one howitzer of fifteen centimeter caliber, four searchlights, 637 rifles, one case of bombs, 300 grenades, and twelve carabols of shells.

In the southern region as far as the Sylvestre sector and in Galicia there have been lively artillery duels at some points.

KAISER PERSONALLY LAUDS FEATS OF GERMAN AIRMAN.

Sends Letter of Praise in Own Handwriting to Lieut. Boelke for Disabling Enemy Machines.

BERLIN, March 24, by wireless to Sayville.—Emperor William has sent the following letter, in his own handwriting, to Lieut. Boelke of the aviation corps:

"I have been informed that you have again returned successfully from combat with the enemy's aeroplanes. 'Recently bestowed on you the highest war order, Pour de Merite, in order to demonstrate the importance of the results of your courageous action, but I shall not let pass this moment, when you have disabled your twelfth aeroplane, which means that you disabled two air squadrons of the enemy, without expressing to you again my fullest acknowledgment of your excellent achievement in aerial fighting.'"

GOSSIP OF BOOKS OF THE DAY

Of Course, This Talk
Never Really Occurred
BY ELIA W. PEATTIE.

OUR books lie on my desk. They are by Gabriele D'Annunzio, Theodore Roosevelt, Booth Tarkington, and Charles Belmont Davis—four gentlemen who doubtless would enjoy each other immensely should they happen to meet at dinner.

"I am quite aware," says D'Annunzio, "that 'THE HONEYBUCKLE,' the title I have given to my latest tragedy, has rather a bad sound. But there is something about the way this vine insinuates itself into its perfume, and taking advantage of all ruin and neglect, and the power of the sun, that I cannot resist it. I see that Sticks, my publisher, has indicated that my name is not innocuous by placing serpents and hearts upon the cover of my book."

James Lane Allen
Author of
"A Cathedral Singer"

"As you will note, I have stolen an idea from Hamlet, and have caused the appearance of my mind aged and wrinkled upon the cover of the woman's book; but instead of permitting the woman to be the avenger of her father's death, I have created a young girl, beautiful and delicate, but full of devastating power. Like Hamlet, she is a girl of the future, she casts it from her. All of her girlhood memories and her womanly hopes are cast upon the pyre of her vengeance. Her intuition is like that of Hamlet. She dedicates herself to destruction; purges herself with her sword."

"Mr. Roosevelt has been good enough to indicate that my play has in it the elements of the Greek tragedies. Permit me to inquire, how can a tragedy be written by the name of an American? But in addition to the nobility of the onward sweep of action in which I may presume there is a resemblance between my play and those of the venerable ancients, I have introduced the psychological interest. I, too, have portraits, but I have manipulated them more after the manner of Maeterlinck than of him who wrote 'The Blue Bird.' I have brought picturesque into play, and have considered the relation of the drama's mood to the drama's action. These are modern devices, and I will confess that I have used every trick in my power to make my play as attractive as the doom—or may I say the awe and ultimate beauty of doom?"

"My dear Col. Roosevelt," said Mr. Booth Tarkington, "it is a good thing for me that my hero, William Sylvanus Baxter, did not read your book or he would have escaped that state of perfect insanity which it delights me to portray. Here of what? You mortify me. Of my new book, 'SEVENTEEN' (you can order it from Harper's). A novel? Well, if you insist, call it a jocular. Anyway, I hope it will make you laugh. I laughed while I was writing it. I have a particular fondness for dream-stricken young fools. I like adolescent egotism in its virulent stages. It is the height of the ridiculous and the essence of pathos. Now, our very distinguished guest, Sig. D'Annunzio, is happy when he depicts the course of doom. He like people to write on the gridiron of life and to die exultantly in their agony. He does it beautifully—superbly. But I am different. I live in the middle west, where we avoid doom if possible. We are not only middle west but we are middle class. We are all for the happy mean. We do not live on storm-bound coasts, and do not favor storm-tossed souls. We laugh more than we weep at life. When we are knocked down, we get up again. Nobody can put a hereditary curse on us. Curses don't work. Despair is not our cult. But we have our troubles. William Sylvanus Baxter is his. Read my book and see if he didn't. It isn't my fault that this amuses me. William will feel better when he is 25. And a lot of folk will feel better for reading about William."

"Ah," breathed Mr. D'Annunzio, "you offer me a new idea. If I might be honored with an autographed copy."

"The honor is mine," said the gentleman from Indianapolis. Col. Roosevelt, "delighted," said the colonel heartily. "You write of the Indians, I believe, Mr. Tarkington. An interesting tribe. Now, when I was with the Kikuyu—"

But at this point Mr. Charles Belmont Davis interrupted factually: "Col. Roosevelt had something in his 'Book Lover's Holidays' which might very well have served as the text for my own book—if I may be so bold as to mention it—'NOTHING A YEAR,' which has, like Mr. Tarkington's rollicking story, been brought out by Harper's. I refer to Col. Roosevelt's comment upon the cold, seclusion, selfish woman who appears in modern novels and in modern life, and who plumes herself upon being absorbed book."

How she reached her present eminence, what famous men and women have crossed her path, what romances, adventures and splendid triumphs have been hers, she herself tells frankly and fully. Every one who has ever heard Miss Farrar sing or seen her act should own this absorbing book."

"In the volume which my friends, the bookworms, have just put upon the market I have told the story of a cougar hunt on the rim of the Grand Canyon; also of a journey across the Nevada desert, of the Hopi snake dance, and of a number of my wild excursions in South America and Africa. I hesitate about including my essay on primitive art in this volume, but it was apropos, in that I was able to compare these prehistoric men with the African savages whom I met for a time. These essays, with one or two others, are the lower Mississippi—a subject in which I am deeply interested—and an account of an odd experience up in Canada, makes my book."

"I hope it will prove something more than an entertaining record of the adventures of a man who has loved life and danger."

More or Less Serious.

"A B'C OF VEGETABLE GARDENING," by Eben E. Rexford (Harper's). Tense advice by one who really knows what he is talking about.

"REVELATIONS OF AN INTERNATIONAL SPY," by I. T. T. Lincoln (McBride). No more revelations than a lepus cuniculus. An unblushing attempt to commercialize his futile treason.

"THE EFFICIENT SECRETARY," by Ellen Lane Spencer (Stokes Co.). If your stenographer is a "typewriter," "How do you spell that?" and "I didn't get that, please," and leaves a wad of gum on your letter, buy this book and give it to her. It tells her everything she ought to know, including how to get a better job than you can give her.

"respectable," but who is, as Col. Roosevelt remarks with characteristic severity, a rather less desirable member of society than a prostitute. In writing "Nothing a Year," I determined to portray such a woman. She is of southern birth, fastidious, loving idleness and luxury, and determined to secure all the parasitic pleasures at any cost. I did not go to the trouble to provide her with a soul. I let her run the gamut of adventures, barely saving her from wantonness more to suit the mood of my public than to express my own conviction. I make good men and bad men love her, though she gives no love in return, and in the end, after she has become a common thief, I permit her to return to her husband, a man with an inherent sense of honor, although himself a barely reformed parasite.

"If you go to looking for the moral to my book you must take it by inversion. I have not offered a thesis, but have suggested a type, and I had pleasure, both of a sardonic and a more or less moral sort, in doing so. Women like my Barbara Lister are wild game, and fair prey for the hunter's rifle. Col. Roosevelt will admit that they are man-eating animals of the most insatiable type, and just as open to attacks as any beast of the field."

"You are quite right, Mr. Davis," said Mr. Roosevelt. "A race is worthless and contemptible if it men cease to be willing and able to work hard, and, at need, to fight hard, and if its women cease to breed freely. If the best classes do not reproduce themselves, the nation will of course go down. When the ordinary decent man does not understand that marriage is the most desirable of all goals, when the ordinary woman does not understand that all forms of life are but makeshift and traveling substitutes for the life of the happy wife, the mother of a fair sized family of healthy children—"

"Coffee, sir," ventured the waiter.

"Thanks," said Mr. Roosevelt.

"But I maintain," interrupted D'Annunzio, "that, artistically speaking, there is nothing of interest in the building up of a family. It is the destruction of a family that appeals to an artist. You understand that. Take the 'Fall of the House of Usher,' one of your few really poignant literary concepts."

"O, William Sylvanus Baxter!" murmured Tarkington affectionately.

"Coffee, sir," persisted the waiter.

The conversation dropped. Each gentleman was deciding that in the future he would choose different dinner companions.

The Challenge of the Future: A Study in American Foreign Policy—Roland G. Usher, author of "Pan-Germanism." $1.75

In this book Professor Usher considers the duties and concerns of our country in this present world crisis. He formulates definite policies on questions of pressing importance. The remarkable foresight shown in "Pan-Germanism" should insure wide attention to this new work.

A Book-Lover's Holidays in the Open—Theodore Roosevelt. $2.00

The joy of living is the motive of this new book of Colonel Roosevelt's, especially of life in the open. There is little or nothing of the beaten track here, but we are shown that the remote places of yesterday are easily accessible today and the pleasures to be found in them are set forth with an enjoyment that is infectious. The title is justified by a chapter on "Books for Holidays."

Roadside Glimpses of the Great War—Arthur Sweetser. $1.25

A vigorous account of adventures in the war zones by "the only American newspaper man on von Kluck's dash to Paris."

Sovereigns and Statesmen of Europe—Princess Catherine Radziwill. With portraits in photogravure. $2.50

Recollections of a Royal Governor. With 50 illustrations. $3.50

Our Early Wild Flowers—Harriet L. Keeler. Cloth, $1.00; leather, $1.25

The latest and a very attractive addition to our flower guides. Pocket edition.

BUSINESS MEN AND DOCTORS
CONFER ON DR. SACHS ROW.

Meeting to Be Held Again Today to Determine on Best Course to Pursue.

The tuberculosis sanitarium situation and Dr. Theodore B. Sachs' resignation were discussed at a conference of business men and physicians last night at the Thain League club. The conference will be continued this afternoon. Among those present were John V. Farwell, Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, Edgar A. Bancroft, Dr. Frank Billings, William R. Sterling, Dr. W. E. Quire, H. O. Edwards, Shelby Singleton, Dr. J. B. Herrick, A. B. Pond, Dr. W. A. Pusey, and Russell Whitman. No decision was reached as to the best course to pursue.

Health Commissioner John Dill Robertson denied that Dr. Martin R. Ritter, now statistician of the institution, is to succeed Dr. Sachs, or that the Chicago Medical society has been told it can make the appointment. His consulting staff of physicians, he declared, has not been cut down materially by Dr. Sachs' leaving.

Both the health commissioner and Mayor Thompson agreed that there has been a conference and that the medical society will be asked to offer a list of recommendations for Dr. Sachs' post. It is probable, however, that the position will not be filled until the civil service commission has finished its investigation of the sanitarium, which will begin this morning.

Information that taxicab drivers were receiving money from keepers of disorderly houses yesterday caused Judge Joseph Z. Uhlir in the morals court to begin an investigation after two taxicab chauffeurs were arraigned before him, charged with having driven two passengers to a south side disorderly house, later raided by the police. Lester Gray and Elmer Farnum were fined $1.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN
PLAYERS ARRIVE TODAY.

"Michigan day" begins at 7 o'clock this morning, with the arrival from Ann Arbor of the special train bearing 125 students, actors, who tonight will present "Trés Rouge," "an up to the minute comedy of sophisticated college life," the press agent says, before 2,000 alumni of the University of Michigan and their friends at the Auditorium theater.

A luncheon has been arranged at the Hamilton club for the troupe, and the members of the alumni association and the University club have also extended a welcome to the actors.

The members of the troupe will have the opportunity of buying "poplin ties" from the Marquis and Marchioness of Abercorn to further the child welfare work in Ireland. A sale of the ties has also been arranged in the lobby of the theater.

WHAT'S CARDUI, A MEDICINE OR LADIES' TIPPLE?

Question Before Jury in Methodist Leader's $300,000 Libel Suit.

Whether "Wine of Cardui" is merely a tonic for otherwise abstemious women or whether it has authentic medicinal value is a question which a jury in Federal Judge Carpenter's court will have to settle.

John A. Patten, "the most influential layman in the Methodist Episcopal church," and his brother, Z. C. Patten, are suing the American Medical Association for $300,000 damages for alleged libel.

Francis Walker, counsel for the plaintiffs, introduced the articles in the American Medical Journal, upon which the suit is based.

Chairman of Book Board. These articles, he charged, were reprinted and circulated among Methodist ministers and officers with the intent of discrediting Mr. Patten, who is chairman of the church book committee and prominent in many other religious activities.

"Wine of Cardui" admittedly contains 20 per cent alcohol—twice as much as champagne," said Attorney T. J. Scofield, representing the defendants, "but we will show that the ingredients need no alcohol to preserve them. We will also show that the medicines and herbs that form a part of this nostrum, which mothers were advised to give to their adolescent daughters, can just as well be put up in pill form."

In This Libel?

Mr. Walker summarized the alleged libelous articles as follows:

"Each dose contains as much alcohol as is found in 100 drops of whisky, but otherwise does not possess any therapeutic value."

"The principal owner is John A. Patten, probably the most influential layman in the Methodist Episcopal church."

"The church accepts Mr. Patten's money, but the official publications of the church will not, so far as we have learned, accept advertisements of Wine of Cardui."

The Journal also charged that the claims of the proprietors—who did business under the name of the Chattanooga Medicine Company—were "false, fraudulent and vicious."

Following the Flag in Mexico

In the opinion of the majority of American editors, including even those in Texas who are too near the danger zone to be easily deluded with false hopes, a strong note of optimism is found regarding the Mexican situation.

In THE LITERARY DIGEST for March 25th the leading article covers, in sweeping form, every shade of newspaper opinion on the most pressing problem that now confronts the American people. The article is well illustrated with scenes of the recent invasion by Villa and a helpful map of the Mexican border.

Other feature articles that will command attention in this week's number are:

Patriotism

Do you stand for it?
If you do, you will be interested to know that

THE OUTLOOK has just issued a little four-page circular containing a brief address on Patriotism, by Lyman Abbott, "The Salute to the Flag," and several stanzas of "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

This leaflet is intended for general distribution among the people of the United States in an endeavor to stimulate their enthusiasm and interest in their country, its present welfare and its future. It may be used in the schools, in the churches, inserted in your daily mail, given to your neighbors—in any way that will serve to bring Patriotism to the attention of the American public.

A one pound package containing about 250 will be sent upon request, postage prepaid, to any one upon receipt of 25 cents to cover the actual cost. Single copies free on postcard request.

FIGHTERS CONFIDENT ON EVE OF BIG BATTLE

Moran Sure He Will Gain
Title in New York
Ring Tonight.

CHAMP SAYS HE'LL WIN

William H. Rocap, eastern representative of "The Tribune," will give a decision on the Willard-Moran fight tonight. Under the New York boxing law referees are not permitted to announce decisions.

BY WILLIAM H. ROCAP.

New York, March 24.—(Special.)—If the people who are waiting the European war are as fixed and as confident of their success as Jess Willard and Frank Moran, the two heavyweights who are to battle for a world's title tomorrow night, the boxing world would soon be over.

Below the surface on another day the world may have a new heavyweight champion. So far as the little colony at Madison Square Garden is concerned, that is sure to be accomplished.

"How is it to be done?" was the question asked.

"We don't propose to divulge our plan," said the referee, Willie Lewis.

What Moran does will be guided very much by the tactics employed by Willard.

Moran to Let Foo Set Pace.

It was pointed to every one at the camp today that the blond haired Pittsburgh heavyweight intends to let Willard set the pace for a few rounds at least.

He expects to throw the big fellow of his balance and then join him on the outside before he can recover.

It was a thing happens, whether it be a seventh, or last round, it will be the turning point in the contest.

Will on the chin will release all the devil in Willard, and once that is released there promises to be a hot battle while it lasts, with the men who can put all this power into the punch on the winner's end.

Pittsburgh Heavy Scraper.

As the writer has always emphasized, Frank Moran is no fool. He is a quick man in the ring more than one would give him for with his mental attainments.

He can take advantage of an opponent's mistakes almost instantly. It has been by that method that he has won so many men to admiration.

He is up to Willard to box a heavy battle in the manner in which he can do this will surprise the sports who have never seen Willard.

The champion, like Moran, was reluctant to discuss his plan of battle.

"I am going out to win, and in the most delicate manner possible. Now, will you?"

I do not say to the world that I will knock Moran out. That is coupled with boasting," he answered as he stepped into a limousine with Tom Jones, Walter Monahan, and an attendant carrying a medicine ball at the Forty-fourth street club this afternoon. They were off to do a training stunt before a moving picture camera.

Willard Plans Surprise.

Willard is not eager to have American sportsmen expect too much of him. He wants to surprise them. The men along Broadway who were not at Havana one year ago are the critics he wants to win.

He is willing to let his exhibition show tomorrow night speak for itself. He is determined to win, and supremely confident. So to Moran, despite the great physical handicap, he will face. So the writer has no hesitancy in saying the triumph was of his own making. In the last year Willard has developed a left hand jab second to no man in the ring. Then he cultivated an uppercut. And it is some right hand uppercut.

For the sake of argument let us admit that Moran and Willard are equal in every respect excepting physique. There is the handicap. Every time Moran undertakes to catch Willard either on leads or corners he must reach up five inches to land on Willard's jaw.

Do you know what this reaching up means? It means that the force of every blow which Moran shoots for Willard's jaw or chin will be lessened. No man can get all the power in his punch hitting at such an angle.

A good little man can beat a mediocre big man, but the big man who has all the little man possesses, coupled with his superior physical advantages, should be returned the victor. Moran will have to use all the physical force nature has given him and bring all his ring craft into play to avoid a decisive beating—that is, to be on his feet when the bell chatters ending the tenth round.

AND GIVE US A CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHT

THE REAL FIGHT

LIMIT OF TEN ROUNDS
LUCKY FOR FIGHTERS,
SAYS 'BILL' MULDOON

BY WILLIAM MULDOON.

New York, March 24.—(Special.)—It is mighty lucky for both Willard and Moran that the lawmakers of the state of New York saw fit to limit prize fights in this state to ten rounds.

Two weeks ago I told you of a visit to Willard's training quarters, and last week I gave you my impression of Moran as I saw him work out.

During the last few days I have had occasion to look the men over more closely at their quarters.

Between me and you, reader, it is a joke to see the pretense of training, and the surroundings, the assistants, so-called trainers, and fight fans that hang about.

They haven't as much idea of knowledge of training as a lot of school children. However, Willard and Moran are both young men that have never hurt themselves by disipation, and not inclined to be fat; and the little scuffling about which they did each day, with some ambitious young chap, was just exercise enough to keep them healthy.

Right for Ten Round Bout.

When the going rings tonight both men will be all right for a ten round bout; not in the true sense of the word—in condition, but enough so that they can go through thirty minutes of work and punishment.

As Willard is as bad as Moran, so far as condition is concerned the fight will pass off all right.

I spent an afternoon at the Pioneer clubroom in New York to witness the exhibition boxing and training exercises by Jess Willard. I had not seen him since his boxing bout of ten rounds, in New York, with Carl Morris, two or three years ago. There is a great change in his appearance; the best proportioned big man that this or any other country ever has produced; does not look his size nor show his weight, excepting in comparison; you must see about him other men who are above the average in height and weight before you get a clear idea of his enormous proportions. He looks to weigh about 230 pounds, and yet he is said to weigh 260, but his weight is so well distributed that it is not noticeable.

Willard Well Developed.

He is not like most of very tall men, who are, as a rule, extremely long in the trunk, particularly the lower leg; that is, from the knee down, with very high legs, ordinary bodies, high broad shoulders, all of which means awkwardness and lack of endurance. Willard is exceptionally well proportioned. His body is the right length and nicely developed; legs are not too long and well developed. He is not too heavy in the lower legs. His shoulders are not broad, but slope to a well developed arm.

His extensor muscles are not overdeveloped, but nicely developed. He is not too long in the neck, nor is he bulked. He had apparently very little knowledge of how to keep himself in a condition that would bring forth to the fullest extent his best efforts.

He has no trainer and no one about him from whom he could learn either boxing or how to fit himself for a hard contest. It is too bad.

Champion to Be Proud Of.

He is a true American and every one in America who takes any interest in athletics must feel a certain pride in at least having a champion of all champions, born of American people in our own country and developed from the ranks of those wonderful American citizens produced in the middle west. There is something beyond the mere idea of the Willard-Moran ten round boxing contest. It is the pride that people must take in having a champion of our own that can defy successfully the whole world, and we can say he is a man above the average in intelligence; a clean, wholesome, respectable family man, one that no man need feel ashamed to follow or imitate.

In the Wake of the News By RING W. LARDNER

WILLARD WINS IN EIGHTH!!!

BY JACK BUNK.

NEW YORK, March 24.—(Special.)—The fight between Jess Willard and Frank Moran was a knockout, but in reality the full ten rounds were not taken by Moran. Referee White, in the interests of humanity and the suffering Belgians, took matters into his own hands and ordered the go stopped.

Moran, too big and ponderous to make an impression on the wily midwest from Kansas, would have been dead to the world before the expiration of another round. He was helpless from the sixth round on, and only in the first season did he escape severe punishment.

Round Four—Jess stood in the draft and caught a big cold. He wheezed considerably and borrowed a red handkerchief from Tom Jones. Moran got the blowcount from eating too fast. It was an even round.

Round Five—Willard hurt his head trying to figure 5 per cent on $45,000. Moran's round.

Round Six—Willard found out that Moran was in the ring and struck him. Willard's round.

Round Seven—Willard stooped over and hit him again. Willard's round.

TITLE BOUT TONIGHT
FIRST IN NEW YORK
FOR SIXTEEN YEARS

BY JACK BUNK.

NEW YORK, March 24.—(Special.)—When Jess Willard, heavyweight champion of the world, and Frank Moran, his most formidable rival, box ten rounds or less at Madison Square garden tomorrow night it will be the first world's heavyweight boxing championship in a local ring in sixteen years. The last titular exhibition of such great pretensions was held at Coney Island on May 11, 1900.

When James J. Jeffries, then champion, was defeated by John Russell, the champion, it was the first time since 1891 that a world's heavyweight championship had been contested in this country.

James J. Corbett, an ex-champion and conqueror of the great John L. Sullivan, in the twenty-third round of a sensational contest.

Gathered around the ring tomorrow night at the historic Madison Square garden to see the foremost gladiators of this generation in action will be the most distinguished crowd that ever witnessed a glove contest in America. It is doubtful if wealth, beauty, and social standing will have ever been better represented anywhere, but forgetting for a moment the nobility that patronizes the boxing clubs of London, England, or the fact that the many art in Paris appeals strongly to the fair sex of Paris.

Women Adopt Ring Sport.

Since that far day of the long ago when the best man Jeffries crushed the pliant Corbett American women have adopted this style from their European sisters. More than 2,000 women, many of them socially prominent in this and neighboring cities, will watch tomorrow night with bated breath the bloody struggle between the swarthy giant cowboy and the dauntless blond contender.

Across the ring will be gathered a multitude of men from all walks of life. There are a dozen different boxes that will represent pyramided millions. Millionaires who were battling to keep the wool from the door when Jeffries was battling Corbett will also be of the party; judges of the first constellation, who would have blushed to have their names associated with a glove contest fifteen years ago, will touch shoulders with senators, lawyers, doctors, merchant princes, governors, and even high representatives of the clergy.

World of Art at Ringside.

The world of art in the various branches—music, stage, painting, and the rest—will be represented by its highest types. Enrico Caruso, David Belasco, John McCormack, and William A. Brady are but a few of these.

Managers Can't Lose.

I have at long distance interviewed the managers of Messrs. Moran and Willard. Two more stalwart exponents of the Manly Art of Self-Defense it has never been my fortune to encounter. When questioned regarding their respective men each spoke very highly of himself.

From their attitude one is bound to conclude that the outcome of the fistfight between Mr. Willard and Mr. Moran what it may, neither manager can possibly lose, unless, of course, a mistake should occur in counting up the gate receipts.

I have been unable to confirm the report that the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan, in conjunction with several of the large munition concerns, has consented to underwrite tomorrow night's affair.

MORAN TO GIVE RECEPTION?

New York, March 24.—So confident is Frank Moran of defeating Jess Willard, either on points or a knockout, that he has engaged quarters at a local hotel for a reception to be held immediately after the bout tomorrow night.

When someone called his attention to the fact that Jim Jeffries did the same thing at Reno in 1910 before his fight with Jack Johnson and never entered the banquet hall, Moran simply remarked that it would be different this time and that the celebration would begin at 11:30 p. m.

IRVIN COBB SAYS HE'S FIT FOR STRUGGLE TONIGHT

Training with N. Webster and Lexicon Prep Him to Write for "Tribune."

METAPHORS ON EDGE.

BY IRVIN S. COBB.

New York, March 24.—(Special.)—In regard to the event to be staged tomorrow night at Madison Square garden, this city and state, at an expense unparalleled in the records of the sport, I take this timely opportunity of stating that I feel myself in every respect equipped and prepared to do my share toward making the affair a notable success.

I am trained to the minute. I am as fit as a fiddle—a large bass fiddle. For two weeks I have been working constantly with my sparring partner, N. Webster, the Unabridged Kid, and always under the direct supervision of that sterling team of trainers, Funk & Wagnalls. Daily I have taken my adjectives out for long cross country runs. My verbs are as splendid condition, supple, elastic, and responsive. I have been punching the Lexicon steadily and playing handball with the nouns. My book of handy quotations is worn to a frazzle and my stock of metaphors is on edge.

Let the Better Man Win.

I entertain no doubt of my ability to make the prescribed weight at the ringside. If I am defeated in tonight's bout it will not be for lack of preparation. In this connection I will only say: Let the better man win.

I take it the general public is aware of the circumstance that Messrs. Jess Willard and Frank Moran are also to have a place in tomorrow's program at the garden. In advance of their meeting I do not care to hazard a surmise as to their respective chances. My reasons for assuming this attitude are twofold. In the first place, it would become me either to speculate upon the prospects or to sponsor the cause of a brother gladiator.

In the second place, I have never met Mr. Willard, although I have frequently heard him spoken of when in the company of his fellow fighters.

Brolled Steer Easy for Moran.

I have met Mr. Moran but once. The occasion was a breakfast supper given in honor of Mr. Charles E. Chaplin, a midweight. Several of those present told me that Mr. Moran was a very good fellow. I was induced to walk for us, but Mr. Moran took no active part in the festivities except when the breakfast was being passed about. His style of attack while engaged impressed me very favorably indeed. I was particularly struck by his facility in leading with his right and covering up with his left. Nothing could have been smarter. He covered ground splendidly. Speaking offhand, I should say that a brolled steer would be completely at his mercy in the same twenty-four foot ring with him.

Even here, however, I would hesitate to indulge in comparisons as between Mr. Moran's ability and Mr. Willard's ability. From their attitude one is bound to conclude that the latter played the cross section of a barbecued beef. I should delight to attend such a joint contest any time, providing somebody else paid for the cows.

AFTER THE BATTLE:
"I'm Not Kicking, But—"

STATEMENTS ON EVE OF TITLE CONTEST

New York, March 24.—(Special.)—The following statements were made tonight by the principals and others interested in the big fight tomorrow night:

JESS WILLARD, CHAMPION OF THE WORLD—I intend to prove that in winning the championship I did not take advantage of a desperate Negro. I fought a cautious fight against Johnson because my hands would not let me take a chance. Johnson a year ago, in my opinion, was a better man than I am today. I think I could have beaten Johnson less than ten rounds. I will show the public this time what I can do when I fight at top speed. Nothing but a clean, early knockout will satisfy me.

FRANK MORAN, CHALLENGER—Willard will find out that bulk is not everything. I do not fear his strength. I know that I can outfight him. I shall carry the fight to him from start to finish. Unless he makes a mistake of it I am sure I can topple him inside of ten rounds. I must knock Willard out to gain the title, and this I am determined to do. Willard cannot knock me out. If he is on his feet at the end of ten rounds he will be the most sorry looking champion the public has ever seen.

TOM JONES, WILLARD'S MANAGER—Jess is out to win as quickly as possible. He will convert the public to the real truth; that he is the greatest heavyweight of all time. Moran will be carried from the ring before the tenth round.

JOHN (IKE) DORGAN, MORAN'S MANAGER—Throw out that fight in Havana and Moran would be favorite. Willard's reputation is based on a questionable victory over an old man. Willard will find his superior in speed, stamina, and hitting power. Willard is a clerk.

WALTER MONAHAN, WILLARD'S TRAINER—Willard is in perfect shape and I do not think the fight will be hard for him. He has a surprise in store for Moran and his followers. The championship is safe where it rests for now to come.

WILLIE LEWIS, MORAN'S TRAINER—Frank's hands are in perfect condition. He had bad hands in both fights with Coffey. He is better prepared than at any time since I have

BRAVE DEEDS OF FIREMEN RECITED TO MEDAL BOARD

Rescues in Face of Death Told on Behalf of Reward Candidates.

A board composed of Fire Chief Thomas O'Connor and Civil Service Commissioners Geary and Prusler yesterday listened to a recitation of the brave deeds of twenty-seven Chicago firemen. The board of awards is to select one of the firemen, who will be presented with the Harrison-Troy trophy medal for 1915.

Summarized, the deeds of some of the firemen were:

Moran, Frank T., truckman, hook and ladder company No. 3, rescued, while off duty, a woman from the fire escape landing of third floor of a burning building at 1515 South Wabash street, March 2, 1915.

Morgan, Charles C., truckman, hook and ladder company No. 3, rescued woman partly overcome by smoke from the third floor of a burning building at 821 North La Salle street, March 2, 1915.

McGrath, Daniel, and Collins, Daniel F., truckmen, hook and ladder company No. 31, rescued a man overcome by smoke from the third floor of a burning building at 1515 South Wabash street, March 2, 1915.

Murphy, Jeremiah, pipeman, engine company No. 66, prevented a woman from jumping from the second floor of a burning building at 611 Wrightwood avenue.

Martin, William L., pipeman, engine company No. 118, attempted to save from injury a woman who had leaped from the third floor of a building at 81 North Halsted street by bracing himself to catch her, thereby breaking her fall.

Cowley, James, lieutenant, engine company No. 78, and John P. Murphy, office secretary, department headquarters, rescued with the aid of a station foot ladder, at personal risk, a woman and child from the third floor of a burning building at 3023 Wilton avenue.

McAuliffe, Jeremiah, fifth assistant fire marshal, rescued a child from a rear room, second floor of a burning building at 4414-4416 South State street, Oct. 2, 1915.

Seaton, John, truckman, hook and ladder company No. 3, rescued at great personal risk a woman from the second floor of a burning building at 142 West Ontario street by means of a ladder, all other means of escape being cut off, Dec. 22, 1915.

Muller, Joseph P., lieutenant, engine company No. 38, and Desha, Daniel B., lieutenant, hook and ladder company No. 8, rescued a man in an unconscious condition from a balcony of assembly hall of a burning building at 3201 Wall street, Nov. 2, 1915.

Meyer, Henry P., lieutenant, hook and ladder company No. 3, rescued an aged woman from the second floor of a burning building at 1031 Blue Island avenue by means of rear stairway, Dec. 13, 1915.

Costello, John J., chief of battalion (retired), and O'Sullivan, James P., pipeman, engine company No. 61, rescued a woman and child from the second floor of a burning building at 6486 Parnell avenue by means of an old ladder before arrival of any department apparatus; all other means of escape being cut off, Dec. 14, 1915.

Wilkey, John, driver, engine company No. 64, climbed from rear of his engine to the seat of same and stopped the runaway team attached to the engine after Louis F. Hafner, driver, had lost his balance and fallen on pole between the horses, thereby saving Driver Hafner from injury and possible death while responding to an alarm on the afternoon of Nov. 15, 1915.

Burke, Edward W., engineer, engine company No. 64, climbed from rear of his engine to the seat of same and stopped the runaway team attached to the engine after Louis F. Hafner, driver, had lost his balance and fallen on pole between the horses, thereby saving Driver Hafner from injury and possible death while responding to an alarm on the afternoon of Nov. 15, 1915.

BY HENRY M. TON
Ten years since there has been a professional boxing match on that occasion a fight between Terry Joe Gans resulted in a fight that was called a "draw" by the referee. It was simply another fact that the bad pugilism enjoys in this country and abroad. Against the sport of the same objection does not seem to be a large element in the ground that it is more or less dangerous which develops the best fighters in a boy.

In Chicago, where professional boxing is quite legal, the commission and the other discourage boxing among frequent their field house. It is a very honest man who is a boxer, and they will explain the situation more or less excitedly. It seems to be a thing to develop the boys. As a concession, perhaps, in boxing among young boys and men, the commission announces a new feature of its habit, to be held at the Academy of the evening of March 30. The south park board, permit boxing, has, however, wrestling, which, professional much more crooked than the danger of serious incidents is usually admitted.

States Limit B

In New York and in other states boxing matches or less rounds are under the supervision of state commissions, usually appointed by the state. Under these conditions, it is not permitted to make any money out of the sport. In New York, the prize of a fight is rendered by the various newspapers, matches, and the effect, then agree, is the same. The prize object of every fight is to demonstrate the strength and endurance of the state. Under these conditions, it is not permitted to make any money out of the sport. Marshal Buckley went to O'Boyle's home, 112 North Racine avenue, and O'Boyle told him he didn't want to go any further with the affair, and that he is satisfied now it was only a "fireman's joke." He was charged the burning occurred when he was being "toughened" for a job with the department, for which he asked.

FLICKERINGS FROM FILM LAND

One of Triangle's Best Productions.

MARATHA'S VINDICATION

Produced by Film Arts.
Directed by C. M. and S. A. Franklin.
Released by Triangle.

By KITTY KELLY.

TRIANGLE'S best results seem to be obtained in the simple, unpretentious pictures where personality is made to count, rather than extravagant stage reputations.

There is no opportunity for the beginning of it in these simple things, such as "Acquitted," "Let Katy Go," and "The Missing Links," that linger longest in the memory as being most effective.

Somehow there was a managerial slip that lost to Colonial theater patrons one of Triangle's best, "Martha's Vindication." Of course, it was added by our censors with a pink slip, there being no opportunity for them to arrange a substantial marriage, the man in the case causing the story by getting killed prematurely by an automobile.

Its morals, however, seem not so much lacking as many a picture that ride the waves of disapproval successfully, and its excellence of portrayal and finesse of spirit stamp it as a wholesome influence. It can be imagined that it would be the girl of 16 a deal more good than it might be of the one of 21.

The scenario, provided by Ella Carter Woods, recalls vividly Pinner's play, "The Girl of the Year," and the present working out there is more humanity and a greater breadth of spirit.

The world outside is introduced into the life of Dorothy, now happily married, confident in the arms of a present working out there is more humanity and a greater breadth of spirit.

On the comedy character side—for this serious film is rich in human comedy that makes it like a glimpse of life itself—there are Billy Marshall and Josephine Crowell to make as funny and as truthful a pair as fiction boasts. They are Dickensian in their roguery, self-interest, and hypocrisy, and every move of theirs makes for mirth. I should like to see them given some quiet, funny old tale to do for their own glory and the public's delight, such as the Allen, Josiah and Samanthas, who once ruled humor's fate, and other things where they might be "folks" without directly hammering home a lesson.

In handling, this photoplay is admirably presented, every situation except possibly the overuse of misadventure, close-ups at the end and the accident coincidence to precipitate the crisis, which has been worked out artistically, making poignant points.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND

AM thankful to you for sending my name to the girls' club. The result was a lovely box of gifts and we are truly grateful.

I have a number of magazines that will supply reading for many hours; then I have about twenty paper patterns for dresses and aprons to fit a little girl of 3 or 4 years of age. My girls have outgrown them. I have also four Battenberg patterns. I will gladly give them to any girl who wishes them, but I cannot pay postage.

My husband has tuberculosis and is in a sanatorium, and I have five children to take care of, the oldest 12 years and the baby 8 months old. May I ask a favor? Is there some one in the Corner who would give me two oldest girls a Bible? They go to Sunday school and have been asked to bring Bibles on Sunday. They want them for home study, too. I might be able to exchange something for the Bibles.

Mrs. T. L. You shall have the Bibles "for love's sake." I know my constituency well enough to expect that each of the girls shall have her own book as soon as readers have had the opportunity to see your letter, for themselves and digest the contents thereof. It is a source of gratitude to us that we have had the privilege of contributing to your happiness in times past. Who will present a Bible apiece to the girls who wish to take it to Sunday school, and to read it with their mother at home? I hold the mother's address. Her donations are welcome and well chosen.

Offers Pair of Crutches.

I have a pair of crutches which have been a short time by a man. They measure 5 feet 2 inches. If they can be of service I'll be glad to send direct to M. S. If I may have her address. If not I'll hold them for some one else in need of them.

Mrs. J. F. L. As we have sent other addresses to M. S. I fancy that she has a pair of crutches by now. Hold yours until we can let some other cripple know of your goodness. They seldom come, and there are more halt and maimed in winter than in summer. We infer this from the number of applications we receive for arch supports, braces, and crutches.

For Rough Hands.

Mrs. H. C. H. asks for a remedy for rough hands. I am sure she will find the following formula satisfactory: Gum tragacanth, one ounce; castor oil, one ounce; glycerin, three ounces; water, one pint; and fifteen drops each of oil of rosemary, bergamot, rose, or any other perfume you prefer. Dissolve the borax in the water, and add the other ingredients. Shake well and use as a hand cream.

Thanks to Generous Donors.

I want to thank you for helping me to get music; to thank also the kind and generous donors. I should like to thank each one with a personal note, but I am confined in some of the addresses. I regret very much I have exhausted my supply, and I am unable to send each person some.

Do not regret that you have given all the pictures you wish. You may give more in the future. A home that can be put into circulation. We have the same trouble with illegible addresses that baffles your friendly intentions. And then we are chided for not answering letters!

Sour Milk Cakes.

Here is a recipe for sour milk cakes: One cup brown sugar, one-fourth cup butter, one cup thick sour milk, two cups flour, one level teaspoon soda, one spoon each fine clover and cinnamon, one cup seeded raisins. Cream butter and sugar, then add other ingredients. More flour may be needed to make the cakes stiff enough to keep their shape when dropped from a spoon on greased pans. Sift soda in flour before stirring into the wet mixture. Bake in quick oven.

her position and went to Chicago, leaving him no address. In a couple of years time she had as a patient an elderly woman, just recovering from a severe illness. This woman was called suddenly to Denver to the deathbed of her only daughter, who was confined in a sanatorium, and her nurse accompanied her, as a matter of course. Imagine her surprise to find that the dying woman was her one time patient, and her joy at being able to attend and comfort the man whom she loved.

The friendship ripened into love on his part also, and two years ago I received the announcement of their marriage. While in Denver this summer I had the pleasure of visiting them in their home and found a truly happy couple.
